COOKIES POLICY

During your navigation on our Site www.traceone.com, some information may be recorded in files called "cookies" (hereafter referred as "Cookies") installed on your computer, digital tablet, or smartphone. The following Policy allow an understanding of what is a Cookie, what is its purpose and how You can set it up.

- What is a Cookie?

Cookies are short pieces of data that are sent to your terminal (computer, digital tablet, smartphone, etc.) when You visit a website. This data can only be read by its issuer. It allows identification of your terminal in which it has been registered and to register your navigation technical data for a limited time.

- What Cookies are we using and for what purposes?

We use the following Cookies in connection with your use of the Site:

1- Cookies strictly necessary for the running of the Site

These are those which are essential for the proper functioning of the Site, without which certain parts of the Site will not be able to function. They are generally only activated in response to actions that You perform. These Cookies do not store any personal data. No Cookie is used to transmit information of personal nature, nor is any type of so-called persistent cookie used, i.e. user-tracking systems.
